

Art Critic for a Day

Students will transform into art critics as they analyze and evaluate artwork while on a tour at the Mansfield Art Center. Several writing prompts will be given to students to help guide their critique before making their way into our classroom space where they will then create a masterpiece of their own.

Before beginning the project, students will share their opinions of their observations and be given a chance to write about what they saw. Just as some of today's art critics use art blogs and other online platforms in order to connect with a wider audience and expand debate about art, students will have a chance for their work to become “published” on the Mansfield Art Center’s Facebook page!

This experience engages every type of learner and is also designed to align with the Common Core Standards for English Language Arts.
